DON'T PISS ON MY BACK AND TELL ME IT'S RAINING

It seems that as the years go by at festival, the term "there's no free lunch!" applies more and more. The fact that veteran actors get paid little, and new actors get paid nothing, seems to be accepted as normal. But something new has happened in the campgrounds this year. Yes, we now have to pay to be clean.

After paying out of your own pocket for costume, tent, and food, all for the benefit of festival profits, you now have to pay for common hygiene. Some of us would like the old hoses back. At least you could get clean for free. I have been told that the money raised at the showers with be invested back into the showers, but this does not somehow comfort me when I think of people who have spent over $80.00 of their own money for costumes and accessories. To charge such dedicated performers for a shower at the end of a hard, hot day makes Scrooge look like a spendthrift!

A person in these times would hardly expect the owners to pay people what they are worth, but one might at least expect them to provide them with some comfort without a fee.

A BAR IN THE CAMPGROUNDS

To whom it may concern the headquarters of THE BLUE UNICORN has a bar in it. The staff of THE BLUE UNICORN hope that this will attract people to stop in and socialize. Whether drinks will be served free or donations asked will depend a lot on the funds of those supplying the drinks and the amounts that are consumed.

We of THE BLUE UNICORN openly invite all participants of festival to visit the headquarters, which we call "The Orange Peel Inn".

If you did not know which tent is the headquarters of THE BLUE UNICORN, it is the brown & yellow tent with the large orange tarp over it.
