INTELLECTUAL UNDERPINNINGS OF THE PUKE & SNOT PHENOMENON: A NOTE FROM THE ACTORS

Hi. We're trying to find ourselves. If you run into us before we do, please ask us to wait. In the meantime, some of you put your name on our mailing list over a year ago, and have no doubt changed your address. If you don't get this, just send it back. The rest of you, here's your chance to join the small legion of hard-core PUKE & SNOT fans all over the world who can be found wearing and listening to our stuff. We've been doing our usual festivals in Colorado, Minnesota, Sarasota, Kansas City and Maryland for the past few years. Colleges and corporations also seem to find us amusing. Our basic philosophy can best be expressed in the following dialogue overheard at the Maryland Renaissance Festival between us and a young Puke & Snot fan:

FAN: In a society that is increasingly in the remote control of the media, live performance is perhaps an institution of an earlier culture. It is, after all, physical, local, communitarian and present. Its motion is centripetal. The way it draws people together, its sense of occasion, is fundamentally social. Our motion as a culture today, on the other hand is centrifugal. We are losing a sense of the social. Don't you agree?

PUKE & SNOT: Absolutely. Now, do you want to buy the shirt or don't you?

As you probably know, performances of the PUKE & SNOT SHOW no longer even attempt to be anything other than an excuse to sell merchandise. So, shop till you drop, people. And remember, we guarantee this stuff. If you get it and you don't like it, send it back for a full and complete refund. And do order something. The costs of maintaining a mailing list this large and sending out these cute little mailers is huge. We'll send you two, and if we don't hear from you, we'll summarily drop your name from the list.
